

Russian White Volunteer Army
1 January 1919

The initial basis for admission into the Volunteer Army was that its soldiers were volunteers, but this ended in 1918. After that it began a form of conscription and it grew considerably as a result.

On 1 January 1919 its order of battle was following:

Commander-in-chief: Lieutenant General ? . I. Denikin
Staff Superior: major General I. P. Romankvskiy

1st Army Corps: Major General B. I. Kazanovich
2nd Army Corps: Major General V.Z. Maj-Maevskiy
3rd Army Corps: Major General Liakhov
Crimean Corps: Major General ? . ? . Borovskiy
1st Kuban Horse Corps: Lieutenant General baron P.N. Vranghel
2nd Kuban Horse Corps: Lieutenant General S. G. Ulagay
Army Artillery Group

Totals: 40,000 bayonets and sabers, 193 guns, 621 machine-gun, 8 armored cars, 7 armored trains and 29 aircraft.

Crimean Corps

13th Infantry Division:

49th Brestskiy infantry Regiment (54 soldiers, 42 non-combatants, 6 machine-guns)
50th Belostokskiy infantry Regiment (87 soldiers, 77 non-combatant, 14 machine-guns)
51st Lithuanian infantry Regiment (67 soldiers, 75 non-combatants, 11 machine-guns)
52nd Vilenskiy infantry Regiment (35 soldiers, 57 non-combatants, 4 machine-guns)

34th Infantry Division:

133rd Simferopol Regiment (34 officers, 23 soldiers, 94 non-combatants, 7 machine-guns)
134th Theodosijskiy infantry Regiment (50 officers, 248 soldiers, 163 non-combatants, 18 machine-guns)
135th Kerch-Enikal'skiy infantry Regiment (46 officers, 336 soldiers, 252 non-combatants, 21 machine-guns)
136th Taganrogskiy infantry Regiment (42 officers, 469 soldiers, 328 non-combatants, 36 machine-guns)
Reserve battalion (12 officers, 30 soldiers, 13 non-combatants)

34th Artillery Brigade (51 officers, 629 soldiers, 168 non-combatants, 19 machine-gun, 16 guns)

Separate Engineering Company: (27 officers, 384 soldiers, 16 machine-guns)

8th Cavalry Regiment (27 officers, 384 soldiers, 16 machine-guns)

Summary Cavalry Brigade:

Brigade Staff (21 officers, 118 soldiers, 22 non-combatants, 1 machine-guns)
1st Native-born Regiment (29 officers, 832 soldiers, 81 non-combatants, 26 machine-guns)
2nd Native-born Regiment (54 officers, 778 soldiers, 152 non-combatants, 26 machine-guns)

Division of 13th Artillery Brigade (92 officers, 279 soldiers,
8 non-combatants, 4 machine-guns)

Total Strength: 437 officers, 4691 soldiers, 1534 non-combatants, 209 machine-guns, 16 guns.

Source: Slashev-Krimskiy Y. A. White Crimea. Year 1920. Memoirs and Documents, Moscow, 1990. - P. 223.

Copyright GFN 2001