

CSI's Mission

In accordance with Army Regulation 870-5, CSI provides a wide range of military historical and educational support to CAC, TRADOC, and the Army. This support includes:

- Research, write, and publish book-length, contemporary military histories of U.S. Army operations.
- Improve the quality of instruction in military history throughout the TRADOC school system by assessing and revising military history training support packages (TSPs), conducting "train the trainer" courses for military history instructors, and serving as the proponent for the Military History Instructional Courses (MHIC).
- Conduct live and virtual battlefield staff rides for TRADOC organizations and the Army at large, and serves as the TRADOC agent for information and assistance with battlefield staff rides.
- Conduct an oral history program that targets Command and General Staff College (CGSC) students and faculty, and Combined Arms Center visitors with recent operational experience.
- Exercise oversight responsibility for the Combined Arms Center command history program and the Frontier Army Museum.
