

Military Review

Lieutenant General
Robert L. Caslen, Jr.

*Commander, USACAC
Commandant, CGSC*

Brigadier General
Sean B. MacFarland
Deputy Commandant, CGSC

COL John J. Smith
Director and Editor in Chief

Military Review Staff

LTC Jeffrey Buczkowski
Deputy Director

MAJ Kevin Cutright
Assistant Editor

Marlys Cook, LTC, USA (Ret.)
Managing Editor

Peter Fromm, LTC, USA (Ret.)
Supervisory Editor

John Garabedian
Associate Editor

Nancy Mazzia
Books and Features Editor

Julie Gunter
Visual Information Specialist

Linda Darnell
Administrative Assistant

Michael Serravo
*Visual Information Specialist
and Webmaster*

Center for the Army Profession and Ethic

COL Sean Hannah
Director

LTC William Speier
Deputy Director

Dr. Don Snider
Senior Fellow

Wanda Majors
William J. Kuiper, EMCM (SS) (R)
Linda Tarsa
Don Jackson
Instructional Programs and Products Division

CH (LTC) Mark E. Fairbrother
Todd Tinius
Michael Toler, COL, USA (Ret.)
Concepts and Plans Division

MAJ Pete Jennings
Research Division

Jeremy Zifchock
Operations

Cheryl Rau
Administrative Officer

Rob Goldstein
Webmaster

FEATURED ARTICLES

2 Foreword

General Raymond T. Odierno, U.S. Army

5 Enduring Attributes of the Profession—Trust, Discipline, Fitness

General Robert W. Cone, U.S. Army

The TRADOC commander reviews the three enduring attributes of the profession.

10 The Profession of Arms and the Professional Noncommissioned Officer

Sergeant Major of the Army Raymond F. Chandler, III, U.S. Army

Noncommissioned officers remain the professional backbone of the U.S. Army.

13 The Army Ethic, Public Trust, and the Profession of Arms

Lieutenant General Robert L. Caslen, Jr., U.S. Army, with Captain Nathan K. Finney, U.S. Army

Professions are not professions simply because they say they are. Their clients expect a rigorous ethic and competence as the basis of professional trust.

21 Intrepidity and Character Development Within the Army Profession

Don M. Snider, Ph.D.

Character development in the Army should instill "resolute fearlessness, fortitude, and endurance" in its soldiers.

25 The Army Profession of Arms

General Frederick Franks, U.S. Army, Retired

The professional military ethic is a shared understanding of the norms and values of our profession.

34 Growing Military Professionalism Across Generations

Major Edward Cox, U.S. Army; Major Kent W. Park, U.S. Army; Rachel M. Sondheimer, Ph.D., and Colonel Isaiah Wilson, III, Ph.D., U.S. Army

The Army's expert knowledge can be broadly categorized into four capacities: military-technical, moral-ethical, political-cultural, and human development. Each generation of officers approaches each of these capacities differently.

43 Commentary: Doing the Right Thing

Command Sergeant Major Anthony Mahoney, U.S. Army

There is a conflict in every human heart between the rational and the irrational.

46 The Chaplain Corps and the Profession of Arms

Chaplain (Major General) Douglas L. Carver, U.S. Army, Retired

The Profession of Arms is supported by a dedicated corps of chaplains who are also professionals.

51 Fight, Kill, Die, Buddy: Words Professional Soldiers Live By

Brigadier General Sean MacFarland, U.S. Army

What separates the military profession from all the other occupations is that soldiers are routinely prepared to kill and die.

Cover Art: Battle of Wilson's Creek, 1893, Kurz and Allison. The Battle of Wilson's Creek, fought on 10 August 1861, near Springfield, Missouri, was one of the earliest engagements in the American Civil War. The first engagement fought west of the Mississippi River, it is sometimes referred to as the "Bull Run of the West." The cover commemorates the 150th anniversary of the beginning of the Civil War. The U.S. Army's Profession of Arms had assumed its defining character by the time of the Battle of Wilson's Creek.

56 Army Civilians—Professionals by Any Definition

Volney Jim Warner and Natalie Lui Duncan

Civilians support the Army as a body of professionals; they are willing to do what is necessary for the Army's success.

67 The Reflective Military Practitioner: How Military Professionals Think in Action

Colonel Christopher R. Paparone, Ph.D., U.S. Army, Retired, and Colonel George E. Reed, Ph.D., U.S. Army, Retired

Understanding the social processes at work in the Army's construction of professional knowledge can prevent inertia, ossification, and ultimately, irrelevance.

78 Leading Our Leaders

Lieutenant Colonel Tim Challans, Ph.D., U.S. Army, Retired

When policy undermines morality, leadership must come from those ostensibly being led.

81 Controlling the Beast Within: The Key to Success on 21st-Century Battlefields

Major Douglas A. Pryer, U.S. Army

Ethical behavior contributes more to mission success than battlefield technology, armored vehicles, gunnery, or weapons ranges.

92 Becoming an Adaptive Leader

Major Harold H. Whiffen, U.S. Army

Today's Army officer must be able to recognize change and respond to it promptly and properly, as this study of a former Army star's misadventures in Iraq attests.

99 Developing NCO Leaders for the 21st Century

Master Sergeant John W. Proctor, U.S. Army

The NCO cares for, trains, and directs soldiers in peace and in war. He is the primary implementer of new doctrine.

BOOK REVIEW ESSAYS

107 War

by Sebastian Junger

Reviewed by Emma Vialpando

110 The Fight for the High Ground

by Douglas A. Pryer

Reviewed by Colonel Peter R. Mansoor, Ph.D., U.S. Army, Retired

The Secretary of the Army has determined that the publication of this periodical is necessary in the transaction of the public business as required by law of the department. Funds for printing this publication were approved by the Secretary of the Army in accordance with the provisions of Army Regulation 25-30.

Raymond T. Odierno
General, United States Army
Chief of Staff

Official:

JOYCE E. MORROW
Administrative Assistant to the Secretary of the Army

0988604

Military Review presents professional information, but the views expressed herein are those of the authors, not the Department of Defense or its elements. The content does not necessarily reflect the official U.S. Army position and does not change or supersede any information in other official U.S. Army publications. Authors are responsible for the accuracy and source documentation of material they provide. Military Review reserves the right to edit material. Basis of official distribution is one per 10 officers for major commands, corps, divisions, major staff agencies, garrison commands, Army schools, Reserve commands, and Cadet Command organizations; one per 25 officers for medical commands, hospitals, and units; and one per five officers for Active and Reserve brigades and battalions, based on assigned field grade officer strength. Military Review is available online at <http://militaryreview.army.mil>.

Military Review (US ISSN 0026-4148) (USPS 123-830) is published bimonthly by the U.S. Army, CAC, Fort Leavenworth, KS 66027-1293. Paid subscriptions are available through the Superintendent of Documents for $42 US/APO/FPO and $58.80 foreign addresses per year. Periodical postage paid at Leavenworth, KS, and additional mailing offices. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Military Review, CAC, 290 Stimson Avenue, Unit 2, Fort Leavenworth, KS 66027-1254.