

Are you interested in writing or publishing an article, monograph, or book?

The Army Press can help.

About

Are you an author with a manuscript on a topic of interest to the Army Profession? Do you want to learn how to publish an article, a blog post, or even a book? The Army Press is actively soliciting manuscripts on history, leadership, doctrine, organization, tactics, operations, and logistics, as well as personal experiences and memoirs. Contact the Army Press now by phone or email.

Mission

The Press supports the Army, DoD, and the JIIM community through worldwide print and digital dissemination of knowledge relevant to the institutional, operational, and historical interests of the Army Profession.

Vision

A single organization that serves as the Army's focal point for identifying, encouraging, and coaching prospective authors to publish original contributions on history, policy, doctrine, training, organization, leader development, and the Army Profession. The Press' programs and products enable scholarship, facilitate professional dialogue, and promote a fuller understanding of the Profession of Arms for uniformed and civilian members of the DoD and JIIM communities.

Please call 913-684-2139 for more information.