

Mr. Gerald L. King
Chief, Knowledge Services Division
CAC-K / Battle Command Knowledge System

Gerald L. King, Chief of CAC-K's Knowledge Services Division of Battle Command Knowledge System is working at the intersection of people, process and technology, bringing transformation to the Warrior Mission Area through IT enabled collaboration and Knowledge Management tools.

Mr. King is a former U.S. Army Communications and Electronics

Automation Officer with Army Signal Center training in DOIM and EAC Operations, Teleprocessing Operations, Branch Automation. Holding a BS in Electronics Management from Southern Illinois University, and a graduate education in Public Administration from the University of Oklahoma he has 34 years of experience in voice and data network operations, data center technology, application development, and end-user support. Before joining BCKS in 2007 he specialized in building, leading, and managing teams in high availability data centers, network operations, and desktop support environments.