

Dr. Bill McCollum

Dr. McCollum serves in the Department of Command and Leadership as an associate professor of leadership and teaching team leader. He is highly respected for his expertise and experience in developing leaders and organizations, service to the Command and General Staff College, and representation of CGSC in the Kansas and greater Kansas City civic and education communities. He is recognized for his research and study of organizational development, stress and resilience, and transitioning leaders for success at higher levels of responsibility. In all he does, Dr. McCollum embodies Major General Fox Connor's spirit of lifelong learning, expertise in military art, and coaching and counseling military leaders for future challenges.
