

U.S. Army Combined Arms Center
and Fort Leavenworth

Ms. Sonja Moyer

Director, Distance Learning

U.S. Army Combined Arms Center
and Fort Leavenworth

Ms. Moyer began her career with the Army Management Staff College (AMSC) as a faculty member, teaching both the Basic and Intermediate Courses in the Civilian Education System. Her 18 years of experience with the Federal Government includes serving as a senior instructional systems specialist in the Center for Army Leadership, teaching faculty development at the Command and General Staff College, teaching with the Department of Defense Schools in Germany, and serving in various leadership positions as a Quartermaster Officer in the US Army. Ms. Moyer also has experience as an instructional designer and curriculum developer with a defense contractor, and she taught several years as a certified teacher in Killeen, TX.

Ms. Moyer's civilian education includes a Bachelor of Science from the US Military Academy at West Point, a Master of Arts in Management from Webster University, and a Master of Science in Instructional Design and Technology from Emporia State University. She is a graduate of the Harvard Senior Executive Program at the John F. Kennedy School of Government. Her military schooling includes the US Army Command and General Staff Officer's Course, Air Assault School, and Airborne School.